We wish we were fans of that gal on the tube by the name of Roseanne Barr. Then we could have the delight and pleasure of not watching her anymore. Her singing of the national anthem was worse than our performance would have been, (but we have better sense than to get before a national TV audience and show our lack of ability). Then for her to make a big show of grabbing her crouch and spitting on the ground forever marked her in our book

Dreams do funny things in our mind. They don't always make a whole lot of sense. This past weekend one of ours was a nightmare and a crazy one at that. The nightmare wasn't a scary one (those we don't get unless we have a fever) but terrible anyway. We opened our fishing tackle box and everything was gone - stolen! The crazy part was that our dream had us surprised because everything was taken, including the fishing rods. Right now we aren't sure just how we got six, eight and nine foot fishing rods into a tackle box that is about 15 inches long. Maybe tomorrow's dream will fill in those gaps. Or better still, we just want them all back before our next chance to drown a few crickets.

Watch the price of gasoline go up, up and up as long as there is a chance of a shortage, real or imagined. Just as soon as Iraq invaded Kuwait we received about a 10¢ per gallon jump in prices. Now that is a higher price for gas when the crude oil to make it was bought at the same price as that for yesterday's gas. Yet when the price of crude oil drops back down, our price drop will be delayed "because the higher price oil is still in the pipeline". While we don't think it is right, there ain't nothing we can do about

We are getting some complaints about trash not being picked up around town as folks think it should be or "like they used to". We can't get upset

We urge citizens to be understanding about trash, normal or remodeling mess, and relief will come. Believe it or not, one day we will be back to normal.

The Alabama Democrat Party may be learning about life in the real world. This time they decided to let the voters decide which candidate will represent the party in the November election. What happened was they had a candidate in some local race get the most votes, but fail to file the required campaign fund report on time. When the Secretary of State refused to certify this candidate because of the delay, his opponent clamored for the right to be the nominee. However the party chiefs have been badly burned several times for going against the voters of Alabama, most notably in the last governors race, and this time decided to just hold another election.

It is almost time for school to start again. This is awful hard to believe, since it was just last week when children got out for the summer or so it seems! We get mixed reactions when searching for any existing excitement about the upcoming first day of school. Teachers, students and parents vary in their feelings of the change in routine.

Gosh that means football time is upon us again. In fact the pros finally ended their last season a few weeks ago, maybe even cut it short so they could start a new season. We heard a pro game going on the tube Sunday afternoon as our youngest son found one of his favorite teams in an exhibition game on TV. Folks we ain't ready.
